LOCAL HISTORICAL TOPICS

Paper Read by W. S. Herrington, K.C. at the Annual Meeting of the Ontario Historical Society held at Napanee Last Week.

Since the Ontario Historical Society is pleased to honor our town by holding its annual convention here, it seems but right that we upon our part should in some manner justify the wisdom of such a choice. We might content ourselves by accepting it as a graceful recognition of the fact, that we have a live and useful County Society, founded and nurtured by an intelligent and untiring President, who grants immunity to none, when he asserts his prerogative to search every attic and lumber-room in the County, and for the good of the cause, to confiscate every musty document and record that comes within his reach. But we have other claims, a few of which I will briefly enumerate. This was once a famous tilting ground, for here those two stalwart knights, Sir John A. McDonald and Sir Richard Cartwright, entered the lists and broke many a lance upon the hustings. Each had his peculiar claim to the suffrage of the electors. Sir John had spent the most interesting period of his boyhood days upon the shores of Hay Bay, where the very atmosphere is impregnated with the spirit of loyalty, and it was in a corner room of a little cottage of Clarksville, not over five minutes walk from this hall, that he first embarked upon his professional career. From time almost immemorial, the Cartwright family has been closely identified with the hamlet, village and town of Napanee, and every householder in town can trace the title of his holding back to what is locally known as the Cartwright estate.

In the field of literature we have produced a Sir Gilbert Parker, and in the Village of Camden East, the visitor is still shown the little country store where he served his apprenticeship behind the counter.

In the neighboring village of Newburgh, there still lives our most respected octogenarian, who gave to Canada one of her most gifted sons, Sir Allan Aylesworth. In the same village one of the foremost educationists of his day first embarked upon his brilliant career, as an exponent of higher education in the Newburgh Academy, and died in harness, the beloved and honored President of Victoria University. I of course refer to the late Rev. Dr. S. S. Nelles.

Canada has produced many able jurists, but I think I am safe in claiming that no man contributed so much towards the uplifting of the bench and bar of Ontario as did the late Chief Justice Hagarman, a native of Adolphustown. Later on mention will be made of the great men who at some period of their lives were identified with this the smallest Township in the Province.

It was from the Town of Napanee, that the legislature of the Province, and our Ontario as did the late Chief Justice Hagarman, a native of Adolphustown. Later on mention will be made of the great men who at some period of their lives were identified with this the smallest Township in the Province.

It was from the Town of Napanee, that the legislature of the Province, secured its first Speaker in the person of the Honorable John Stevenson, and the Chairman of this meeting now sits upon the self same chair he occupied while filling that position.

To our militia we have contributed Major Perry of the North West Mounted Police. The industrial world is indebted to us for M. J. Butler C. M. G., once Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, now President of the Dominion Steel and Coal Company. We take an especial pride in claiming as our very own, one who has endeared himself to the great farming interests of our country, and is an honored member of the Society, Mr. C. C. James C. M. G. L. L. D.

In this County was first planted the seed from which has sprung the great Methodist Church of Canada. In January 1790, William Losee came to Adolphustown to visit his U. E. L. friends and relatives, and while there so impressed the settlers by his pious and saintly life, that upon their petition, he was in the following October appointed the first regular itinerant Methodist preacher in Canada. His circuit extended from Kingston to the head of the bay of Quinte. The first three regular Methodist classes in Canada were organized in the early part of 1791, on the shore of Hay Bay; in the Village of Bath; and in the Township of Fredericksburgh, respectively. The first Methodist chapel was built on Paul Hough's lot on Hay Bay. This old landmark of Methodism was fast falling into decay, but thanks to the energy of another old Napanee boy, Mr. A. R. Davis, C. E., suitable provision has been made for its restoration and preservation. Amid surroundings that must have suggested the humble birth of our Saviour, the first Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, administered to a body of Methodists in Canada, was celebrated in the barn of a Mr. Parrott, in the first session of Ernesttown on the 15th., of September A. D. 1792. The Canada Methodist Episcopal Church was brought into being at a conference held in the old Switzer Chapel in the Township of Ernesttown, in the month of October 1828. I have in my possession the writing desk of the "Father of Indian Missions," the Rev. William Case, whose name is a household word in every Methodist home in this country. In 1905, near the old chapel on the South shore of Hay Bay, he presided over the first camp meeting ever held on Canadian soil.

Let us now take a little trip upon the water, and before our return, I think you will be convinced that there are many good and sufficient reasons why Napanee should be the rallying point for just such a body of men and women as I see before me. Before we leave the dock, just glance along the northern bank to that huge frame building just below the falls. I need not tell you that that is the "big mill". Upon that site Robert Clark built a mill in 1786. The second flour mill erected in Central Canada, and from far and near the early settlers, white and red, came in their batteaux and on horseback with their little grists, and Napanee became famous for its flour. So famous indeed, was the output of the Napanee mill, that the word "Napanee" became in the Indian language synonymous with flour. Before we drift into a controversy over the origin of this name let us get aboard at once. While lingering at the wharf, struction of local improvement Council adjourned.

COUNTY COURT.

County Court and general sessions of the Peace for the County of Lennox
and Addington opened at the Court House on Thursday at 1.30 p. m., His Honor Judge Price presiding.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

We, the grand jurors, for his Sovereign Majesty the King, for the County of Lennox and Addington, beg leave to report.

That we visited the gaol and found
five male prisoners and one female.
Two of this number are awaiting removal to Toronto. The prisoners were well satisfied with the treatment they are receiving. We found the gaol clean and in good order and consider the present gaoler a very competent officer. On examination of the walks and stoops of the gaol we would recommend that a cement stoop and walk should be built to replace the present structures which are somewhat dangerous owing to their decayed condition.

We congratulate your Honor on your apparent good health and hope that you may long be spared to fill the position which you now occupy.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed on behalf of the Grand Jury.

Linked by Fate

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Author of "The Verdict of the Heart," "A Heritage of Hate," "Nell of Shorne Mills," "Paid For," "A Modern Juliet," Etc.

"We will land at once," he said. "You wish it?"

"Yes," she said, "let us go. When we are there I will tell you, I will explain. Your patience—ah, how great it has been, how sorely tried!—shall not be tried any longer. Yes, let us land. But, wait!" She put her hand to her head as if trying to think, as if some difficulty had occurred to her. "Lord Sutcombe, I want that only you and Lady Vivienne and I should land—at first, at any rate. Can you manage it so?"

"Why, of course!" he responded with an encouraging smile as he looked into the lovely eyes whose every expression he knew by heart. "I will take just sufficient men to land us, and they shall remain in the boat until, well, as long as you wish them to do so."

She nodded and stood watching the launching and manning of the boat. The crew of the Ariel were disciplined like a man-o-war's men, and they rowed with stolid faces and incurious eyes, whatever they may have felt, to the nameless island which they had been chasing so long.

As the boat approached the sand-fringed shore, Nina's face grew paler, and she turned it away from the others, though there was no need, for Sutcombe and Vivienne studiously avoided glancing at her. He helped her out of the boat, almost as gently and carefully as he helped Vivienne; and as if absorbed in her own thoughts, Nina silently led the way up the beach.

The huts were still standing as they had been left, but Nina's eyes were fixed on a spot where a mound rose on the shingly strand. She stood there for a moment, her head bent, her lips moving; then she walked on to one of the huts.

"Go in," she said, motioning them to enter her own hut. "Yes, I—I am at home! Did you not guess?" as they entered and stood and looked round them, at last regarding her with astonishment. "I once lived on this island. I was wrecked here, with some of the passengers and the crew of the Alpina. Sit down, Lady Vivienne, I want to tell you."

Leaning against the rough hut she told them the story of the wreck, that is, a part of the story, for she made no mention of Vane Mantering, who had been the prominent figure. "My father died—and a friend, a friend who was like a brother to me—It was at their grave I—stopped just now."

Sutcombe's eyes were fixed on her with the tenderest sympathy.

"I—I am not surprised at your wanting to find the island, at your anxiety to revisit it," he said in a low voice.

But Nina shook her head. "I had another reason," she said. She might well have said reasons, for assuredly the longing to see once going to offer you these; indeed they are not mine"—she paused—"only half of it is mine. But there is plenty more; my father said the island was an Eldorado; and the gold is yours, any one's who comes and likes to dig for it. Indeed, one need not dig very much, for it lies in the beds of the streams, and in streaks in the rocks."

Sutcombe gazed at her in amazement too great for words.

"And—and no one knows of this but you!" he exclaimed at last.

"No one but I—and one other, the person to whom half of the gold belongs."

He wiped his brow, for to the least mercenary of men the presence of a vast quantity of gold, with prospective possession, is rather a discomposing fact, one not to be contemplated without a thrill.

"And he?" he asked, breathlessly.

"Where is he? Why is he not here?" The color left her face and her lids drooped.

"I do not know," she said in a low voice. "He—he may be dead!"

"He did not escape with you?" asked Sutcombe.

She made a movement of her hand, as if the question, the subject, pained her.

"No—I left him here. I—ah, do not ask me any more!"

Vivienne leaned forward and touched her hand. "No, no, dear, we will not! Oh, do you think we do not understand! To be wrecked here on this lonely place! To have suffered, as you must have suffered—no, not a word more shall be spoken, dear Decima!"

Sutcombe leaned against the log wall of the hut, his arms folded, his eyes fixed, not on the gold, but on the floor.

"And it was for us, for us that you have worn yourself to a shadow with anxiety and hope deferred," he said. "That we might have this gold—"

"Why not?" she broke in. "Would you not have done the same for me, for any friend? And what true friends you have been to me! And what is the use of it if it cannot be put to such good service?"

"And you never thought of yourself?" he said, very quietly. "You were not rich—"

"Very poor, indeed," she said with a laugh.

"And you never thought of finding this island, this Eldorado, for your own benefit?"

"No," she said simply; "what should I have done with it? What is the use of money when—" She paused. "Besides I was lucky so soon. I thought so much of my work, of my play, that if the gold had been lying on Hampstead Heath instead of on a mysterious island in the wide ocean, I don't think I should have troubled to take the train for it." She sighed, then, with a winning smile, she

They talked over Sutcombe and presently he went down to the beach, signalled the boat off for rugs, bedding and when these were brought aboard, told Barnes they were picnicking on the island, and him to take the Ariel and pick them up in a week.

When he came back he found the two women had already the picnic. Nina's hut transformed into quite a comfortable bower with the rugs and other things from the yacht, and Nina told him, was down a "saloon" getting tea.

"It's the most wonderful most bewitching place," Vivienne said from the corner which Nina had bestowed "saloon" is the large hut men lived. We have arranged you are to sleep in a corner for the other hut is not available, Decima says. She is everything; indeed, she is as full as the island! But Nina shook her head. "I had another reason," she said. She might well have said reasons, for assuredly the longing to see once again the place in which she had tasted such misery and such happiness had drawn her there. "It is the reason that I asked you to let us come alone. Lord Sutcombe, this island was discovered, so to speak, by the unfortunate castaways, who dragged themselves to land here that night," she shuddered; "but my father made another discovery, and it is that which led me to ask you to let me come with you on your cruise, and gave me courage to persuade you to alter the course of the Ariel. You remember the night you told me of your loss?"

Sutcombe nodded. Was there any one night, any one incident connected with her, which he was likely to forget?

"That night I remembered—I think for the first time, strange as it may seem—this discovery of my father's, and an idea in connection with it flashed into my mind. Tell me, Lord Sutcombe; I am his only daughter, child. That which belonged to him, when he died, now belongs to me, does it not?"

"Most certainly!" replied Sutcombe, all in the dark, but patiently waiting for the light. "You inherit everything of which he was possessed."

"I am glad," she said, as if relieved. "Wait for one minute!"

She went outside, but even at that moment she paused and looked round with an aching heart, a heart that throbbed painfully with the memories of those short days of vague, uncertain bliss. The whole island seemed to speak of Vane; seemed to be crying to her: "You have come back; but where is he, our master!" She drew her hand across her eyes and roused herself from her reverie, and, going to the back of the hut, scraped away the soil from a small mound, took up two or three of the pieces of gold quartz, and, re-entering the hut, laid them on the rough table just as her father had done on the night of their discovery.

Sutcombe and Vivienne looked from them to her questioningly.

"Do you not understand?" she said with a smile, almost of contentment; for it was sweet to be able to repay, even thus inadequately, some fraction of the goodness of these friends of hers.

"What is it?" said Sutcombe, taking up one of the pieces. "Why! It's not—"

"Yes, it is gold!" she said, her face flushing, her eyes glowing.

But Sutcombe's face grew pale, and, laying the quartz down, he drew back.

"I—I congratulate you, Miss Wood," he said—not "Decima," as he had of late slipped into calling her. "If—if there is much of this, you—you must be very rich!"

"I?" she said. "Ah, yes, I suppose so; but—but it was not for myself—"

She stopped, for his face had grown hot, and his eyes flashed almost resentfully. Vivienne laid her hand upon his arm imploringly.

"Wait, wait till she has finished, Sutcombe," she whispered.

Nina looked from one to the other and, comprehending, colored almost as hotly as Sutcombe.

"No, no!" she said. "I—I was not mysterious island in the wide ocean. I don't think I should have troubled to take the train for it." She sighed, then, with a winning smile, she went up to him and touched his sleeve. "Lord Sutcombe, you won't let scruples interfere, you won't—make difficulties?"

He longed to take the hand that touched him so pleadingly, to draw her outside and say, "I will take the gold you offer me so generously if you will be still more generous and give me that which I value beyond all the gold in the world—yourself!" But he knew, though he could not have told how he knew, that this was of all moments the worst for such a question; of all places, this the least favorable.

"No," he said, drawing in a long breath. "I'm not so churlish—so foolish. I am still too amazed—at present, it all seems like a story out of an adventure book—to quite realize it; but—I accept your generous offer. If the gold is here for the finding—well, Vivienne and you shall be rich."

"Yes!" said Vivienne with womanly cunning. "I accept unreservedly. I have hated the thought of being poor! Why, think of it! We should have had to sell the Ariel at Melbourne, have been obliged to go in for farming, or something of that kind, or settled in some stuffy town on the Continent. And now we can keep the dear old yacht, and we can all go back to England—and you can buy back Southerwood, Sutcombe—I told you how it passed from us, Decima? And I can get those pearls I wanted, and—oh, what will you do with all your money, you millionaires?" she broke off, drawing Nina to her and hugging her.

Nina tried to smile. What, indeed? The uselessness of the gold mocked her at that moment as it had mocked her the day it had been found. There was only one thing she wanted, and it is the one thing no money can buy—forgetfulness! But she strove to dispel the black shadow from her mind.

"Oh, I'll found a National Theatre—for the performance of artistic dramas—by 'Herbert Wood!'" she said. "But now let us be practical, as Polly would say. This is a dangerous secret, Lord Sutcombe. You know now why I thought it better that we should land alone?"

He nodded.

"Let me think!" He took out his pipe. "May I? Thanks! Yes, the men mustn't land here, at any rate; they must not come further into the island than necessary. We want water—"

"There is plenty near the beach!" said Nina, stifling a sigh; back came the times when she walked from the stream with the can in her hand, and Vane coming to meet her to take it from her.

"Quite so. They shall get what they want, and Barnes shall take the Ariel on a cruise, leaving us here. There are enough provisions—"

And there are fish and duck, and turtles in plenty," said poor Nina, trying to smile.

Vivienne clapped her hands and nodded gleefully, though all the time she was watching Nina from the corner of her gentle eyes. "Why, it will be like a picnic, a real picnic! Even if there had not been all this wonderful gold, it would have been worth all the trouble—ah, but not your anxiety, dear!—just to see so beautiful and romantic a place. It is like a Fairy Isle!"

Nina turned away swiftly; the name was like a stab.

Sutcombe eagerly, for that they three were alone on that island, that he should see every hour of the day was joy to him; but Nina responded.

"You will soon tire of tude," she said in a low voice. "I will take you to see some of the gold. The spade"—she winced as she thought of the burial of her father's Fleming rose before her—other tools we brought wreck; and while you are gold, I will go and fish."

"You fish! Why, how learn, who taught you Vivienne."

"I—I—have watched—pe ing," said Nina.

Vivienne looked round. "Oh, it's just a dream say!" she laughed. "This Decima! Here are you sitting here on this remote just we three on this fairy far away in giddy London electric lights and its crowds, are our friends, we know, leading the dreary, monotonous lives same old, smoky air. What do you realize that they this moment—or is the time—thronging to the Momus latest successful play? If only see the author!"

They busied themselves necessary work of this moon picnic until nearly midnight last Vivienne, suddenly gro with the excitement, was by Nina to go to bed.

Sutcombe had said gone off to his quarters saloon; but he could not after awhile he got up down to the beach and looked moonlit sea, as Vane Mar looked on many such a night, half unconsciously up toward the other huts in which he had left the was dark, all was still; he turned he saw a dim light other hut, the hut he had entered. you were there. I saw the light and came to find out if there was anything wrong. What is it, Decima? You will tell me, will you not? I've no right to ask—and yet I have. For I love you, Decima! No sorrow, no trouble can touch you that does not reach me also! All my thoughts, all my life, are bound up in you! I've no thought, no care, but for you! Ah, don't look at me so! What—what—have I said, what have I done? Have pity on me, Decima dear—"

He had drawn nearer to her, half unconsciously, but she shrank back from him with something, as it seemed to him, like terror and horror in her eyes and on her quivering lips.

"No! No!" she breathed with a shudder, as if a cold wind had passed over her. "Don't—don't say it! I—I never knew, guessed—"

"Not even guessed! Oh, Decima!" he whispered, reproachfully.

"No!" she responded, passionately. "Never! I did not know. You must not say another word! You will not? Oh, how unhappy, how wretched I am! And I thought to—make you happy—"

"You have, you have, Decima!" he pleaded, for her grief, her self-reproach, were almost unendurable. "I had never known happiness until I had known you, until that night I saw you—"

"Hush!" she whispered, almost moaned. "You—you don't know what you are saying, what—I am!"

As she spoke she thrust the paper and the ring she had held in her clenched hand into her bosom.

"Don't say another word. Let us—let us try and think you have not spoken. For Vivienne's sake I will forget it, I will, indeed! And you must, you must, you must!"

He put out his hand to stay her, and tried to stammer out a remonstrance, an appeal, but she shrank back, and murmuring:

"No, no! Let us forget it. You don't know—don't know!" passed him and glided toward the hut where she had left Vivienne sleeping.

And on a similar night, some months earlier, Vane strode up and down the terrace at Lesborough and looked into the mist that hid his lawns and park. It hid the familiar view from him, but it opened and let him gaze, with longing despair, at the Fairy Isle, that rarely left his what his plans were, and he shrugged his shoulders and smiled—you know that smile of his—as if he did not care, and it did not matter."

There was silence for a moment or two, then Letchford said:

"Is Judith engaged to Julian Shore, Blanche?"

She did not reply for awhile, then she replied:

"I don't know. Sometimes I think she is, at others I doubt it; but I fancy there is some kind of understanding between them. He has looked—well, as a man looks who at least has some reason for hope."

"He looks jolly bad at most times," grunted Letchford. There's a pinched look about his face, his eyes shine too much, and he seems to be in a kind of dream half his time."

"I know. And Judith has the same look about her mouth and in her eyes. Charlie, there is something mysterious about those two. They seem to be—to be watching each other, as if they were waiting for something to happen."

Letchford burst into a laugh.

"Pon my word, Blanche, you talk like a shilling novel! Why on earth should they watch each other, and what can happen? I say, would you mind if I asked Vane to come South with us?"

"Not in the least. I have grown to like him. But he won't come, Charlie. As I said, he will be glad to be rid of us, for he wants to be alone to brood over this unknown trouble of his. But ask him, by all means."

"I'll have to ask Julian Shore as well."

Lady Blanche raised her brows and made a little grimace.

"I suppose so; well, I don't like Mr. Shore—but it does not matter. Lord Lesborough will not come, and Mr. Shore would not accept without him. I have no fear. You'd better begin to dress, Charlie. I can hear that most of them have gone to their rooms, and you always take such a frightful time. I'm sure I don't know why; you only put on the same things every night, and ought to be able to do so blindfolded."

As Lady Letchford had said, most of the people had gone to their rooms; but one or two still lingered in the half light in the drawing-room and conservatory; and Judith looked into the mist that hid his lawns and park. It hid the familiar view from him, but it opened and let him gaze, with longing despair, at the Fairy Isle, that rarely left his memory.

One of the drawing-room windows was open, and Judith's voice floated out to him. In a pause the sound of voices and laughter followed. The scent of cigarettes came from the smoking-room, the lights from the windows of the great house fell garishly athwart the terrace.

It all jarred and weighed upon him. The man was infinitely weary of it all; for Fate had robbed him of the one woman who could have made life worth living, and the rank, the wealth, that were his, tasted as bitter as Dead Sea fruit upon his lips.

"My God, who would have thought it would have been so difficult to forget!" he muttered to himself as he bit at the unlit cigar between his teeth. "How much longer, I wonder, can I endure this life? And what a fool I am to bear it a moment longer. Why don't I go?"

He smiled in grim mockery at the question. He was the Earl of Lesborough, "lord of half a county," with all the "responsibilities and duties" of his lofty position. Rank, wealth, the power which belongs by right to men in his position, wound round him like the chains of a galley slave, and cut into his aching, unsatisfied heart.

"If by some means, any way, any how, I could get away from it all forever!" he mused, with a gesture of utter weariness.

He need not have worried himself over the hopelessness of the idea, for at that moment Julian, as he sat brooding in the Witch's Room, was evolving a simple little plan which would make the gratification of Vane's desire quite easy.

CHAPTER XX.

It was the last night of the house party at Lesborough. Some of the guests had already gone, but, amongst others, the Letchfords and the Ormes still remained, the Letchfords because Vane was fond of them and had pressed them to stay, until the last minute, and the Ormes because he was anxious that Julian should have every chance of paying his suit to Judith.

"Take it bye and large, Blanche, we had a very good time," said Sir Charles in that hour before dinner which he always claimed for a confidential chat with his wife. "But of course I should always be all right anywhere with Vane."

"Y-es," she said, as she lay back in her chair before the fire, warming herself in her dressing-gown. "Y-es. It is to be wished that Lord Lesborough could reciprocate and be 'all right' in your company."

"You think he isn't happy, that there's still something on his mind, Blanche? How you stick to that idea of yours! Do you remember how it seized upon you the night we found him?"

She nodded thoughtfully. "Yes, the trouble is still there, whatever it was and is," she said. "No one could have played the part of host better than he has done; but he has been playing, acting, all the time. He has been bored—no, that's not the word, wearied—to death every day and every hour; and much as he likes some of us—you especially,

Charlie—he will not be sorry, I think, when he sees the last of us. Where is he going; do you know?"

Sir Charles shook his head. "I don't know. I don't think he knows himself. I asked him this morning

As Lady Letchford had said, most of the people had gone to their rooms; but one or two still lingered in the half light in the drawing-room and conservatory; and Judith stood in the latter listening moodily to the steady tramp of some one pacing the terrace outside. It was Vane, and though she could not see him, her eyes, as they followed his movements as he passed to and fro, dilated and contracted in unison with the beating of her heart. The love she had borne him, even when she had deserted him, had changed into hate; but through the circle of that hatred, the memory, the sting, of that old love penetrated; and the sight of him, the sound of his voice, his footsteps, still had power to move her.

She was turning away to go to her room when she heard another step, a softer one than that outside, and, turning her head, saw Julian enter the conservatory. Now, strange as it may seem, these two had not been alone together since the night she had enacted with him the melodramatic scene below the terrace. It had not been necessary for her to shun him, for he had not sought a tete-a-tete. Not by word or sign had either of them referred to the incidents, the speech, of that night. But Judith had, when Vane was present, been more civil, indeed, sweetly pleasant to the cousin for whom he had pleaded; so amiable, in fact, that Vane assured himself that his words had borne fruit and that all would be well between Julian and her.

Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopoeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves. . . . N. Y. World.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, mandrake and queen's root, black cherrybark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A harmless cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

J. D. MATHESON, ESQ.

J. DONALD MATHESON of Ossining, N. Y. says: "I suffered for over five years with what the doctors told me was dilated condition of the stomach, associated with a catarrhal condition of same, and nervous heart. I had tried enough nux, bismuth, gentian, rhubarb, etc., to float a ship and naturally thought there was no cure for me, but after reading what eminent doctors said of the curative qualities of the ingredients of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I gave it a fair trial. Took the 'Discovery' and also the 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can truthfully say I am feeling better now than I have in years. I cheerfully give permission to print this testimonial, and if any 'doubting Thomas' writes me I will 'put him wise' to the best all-around medicine in the country to-day."

TOO OLD?

Too old to bother with trees, eh? Well, well! Some years ago a Mr. Cobb of Massachusetts set out an orchard when he was seventy years old. He mildly remarked, when ridiculed, that "some one could use the fruit." As a matter of fact, he lived to be 107 years old, so local history affirms, and enjoyed for many years the harvests from those trees.—Farm Journal.

HAY FEEDING PEN.

May Be Used In Supplying Fodder to Stock In the Fields.

A great many farmers turn their stock into fields in the spring and feed them hay from the stack. Often they haul out the hay and throw it on the ground. While the stock may get a good deal of it, they will necessarily trample a lot of it into the ground or so befool it by running over it that they will refuse to eat it. Here is a good plan for making a hay pen into which the hay may be thrown: Set four posts into the ground, one at each corner of a parallelogram 6 by 8 feet. Nail strong 2 by 4's to these posts every foot from the ground to the height of three feet. Leave a space wide enough for stock to get their heads through easily and nail another 2 by 4 or attach strong barbed wire in its place. This will keep the stock from jumping into the pen. If 2 by 4 pieces cannot be obtained strong poles secured from the timber and trimmed at ends so they can be nailed may be used instead.—Iowa Homestead.

GOOD HAY PEN.

PRESS COMMENTS.

Exchange—Naturally, Mr. Rowell's temperance policy receives the endorsement of the Methodist conferences. It is the most "advanced" temperance policy in sight.

Toronto Globe—If the duty on cement represents privilege, as the News asserts, why does not the Borden government wipe it out? Is Borden afraid of Sir Max?

Brantford Expositor—The leafy month of June has been ushered in with glorious splendor. The busiest men for the next 30 days will be the clergymen, and the tying of wedding knots their chief occupation.

Winnipeg Tribune—"If Premier Borden and Hon. Mr. White were as considerate of public interests as they are of the monopolistic, combined interests, Western Canada would be millions upon millions in pocket."

Hamilton Spectator—When perjury is so ripe in these degenerate days, that Montreal Judge would likely have got as near the truth in taking the evidence of a witness on his word of honor as if he had been compelled to kiss the Bible.

Guelph Herald—The coal barons are proceeding to fill their pockets at the expense of the consumers. It looks as if for a 7½ per cent increase in wages they are trying to exact nearly a dollar a ton from the man who has to buy the coal.

Montreal Herald—The doctors are finding that some children should and some should not eat candy. And the child who will not take the benefit of the doubt is almost sure to be the one who does not need it. So everything looks for both science and the youngster, a most happy concurrence.

Hamilton Herald—If the R. & O. Navigation company is determined to run excursion steamers on Sunday, it might propitiate public opinion by providing for religious services on board, and plead that the Sunday boats are really means of grace. There would be precedent for such a policy.

SCHOLARS IN CHINA

They Rule the Country. Foreigners Are Called

The scholars rule China (and) is of more moment there than in any other country, yet the scholars are poor and meanly received with honor by the land.

"The superior man" of Confucius is the equivalent of the scholar with us. This man, his character and his conduct are the corner stone of approbation. His virtue, his social relations, his public and private, are defined. His dignity is almost equal to that of a king and must be maintained at any cost.

In contradiction to the idea of dignity, however, the scholar will play battledore and with his feet and fly kite boys, like old men, stand and look on. This he does out of instruction and to teach children how the superior man when his high purpose is to educate the young would be precedent for such a policy.

Windsor Record—Banks, municipalities and even the Governments here in Canada do not pay enough attention to the small investors. Nearly all the so-called "good things" are gobbled up by the rich fellows, leaving the small investors as the prey of the get-rich-quick sharks.

Saskatoon Phoenix—Canadians will not give deep concern to the question of whom the American people will elect President, but it is their fervent desire that a man may be chosen who will combine in himself those elements
of peace, justice and belief in institutions which should mark a great civilized State.

Saskatoon Phoenix—Official statistics shows conclusively that the agricultural output of this country is increasing faster than the population, a condition that would naturally be expected. Yet the cost of living increases. What is the explanation if not through the operation of a protective tariff we are being compelled to pay more in the shape of exports
for what we are compelled to import.

Regina Leader—"Saskatchewan for Borden and Haultain" is the legend
the Conservatives are inscribing on badges, cards and other campaign material. Just imagine the people of the most progressive Province in Canada handing that Province over to a man whose policy is "Let well enough alone," or to a man who says he wants to be elected in order that he may strengthen the hands of the "let well enough alone" man.

Kingston Standard (Conservatives)—
The London Daily Telegraph says
there will be no British fleet in the Pacific, and for reasons that will satisfy Canadians as well as Britishers.
Under the circumstances it is not likely that Canadians will fall in with Hon. Mr. McBride's idea that Canada
must have ships in Pacific waters.
British Columbia may want such ships,
the rest of Canada does not.

Winnipeg Telegram—Another is the illicit combination of middlemen to reduce prices to the producer and enhance them to the consumer. If those engaged in this delectable form of robbery only knew it, they are preparing for themselves or the inheritors
of their wealth a terrible retribution.
But they follow the instinct of human selfishness and require strict Governmental restraint which is not impossible.

Edmonton Bulletin—Interviewed in London, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy told the reporter that his company had made adequate provision for handling the grain crop of the west this year quickly. This would be welcome news to the western farmer if it was not discounted by the following sentence.
This is to the effect that western grain
has not in the past suffered from lack of transportation facilities. A man whose memory is as bad as that is not to be trusted in his prophecies.

A TIP ON CHECKS.

Advice by a Woman Who Always Fills
Out the Stub First.

The west side woman was paying with a check for some articles she had bought at a department store, and she was carefully filling in the stub of her check book first. "Oh, don't stop for that," urged her shopping companion,
who was in a hurry. "You can do that when you get home."

Unmoved, the west side woman finished the stub with special care, then wrote the check, gave it to the salesman and said to her impatient friend:
"Before I was married I took care of some of my father's accounts. The first time he ever asked me to fill out a set of blank checks for him so he could sign them he told me: 'One rule
you must always observe—write the stub first. Make a vow to yourself, like unto the vow of Jephthah, that you will never write a check until the stub is filled. If for any reason you should fail later to write the check it would be a simple matter to cancel
the stub, but if you write a check and leave the stub blank you open the door to a hundred chances of mistake.
No one's memory can be trusted on that subject. Never try to trust yours.
Let the law of "the stub first" be to you as the law of the Medes and the Persians.' I have always found it perfectly easy to follow that rule, and

HOSTILE HEIRS DISAPPOINTED

He Knew How to Make a Will

When William Marvel, of Tucker-smith Township, Ont., died, every person in the vicinity expected to see a lively legal battle between the heirs.

The old man had not been on good terms with any of his relatives and was equally averse to lawyers. It was inferred that he would leave no will and the rival claimants were ready to do battle, legally of course, for their "rich s."

One of the first things found among his papers, however, was a will made out on a BAX Will Form. That settled the matter definitely—there was no fight.

It has been found that it is useless to dispute wills made on the BAX Will Forms. The moral is obvious—to save lawyer's fees and to be sure that your wishes will be carried out in case of death—use a BAX Will Form. Each form is accompanied by a specimen will and full instructions for your guidance, but be sure to get a BAX Legal Will Form, as they are copyrighted and indisputable.

For sale by all stationers and druggists at 35 cents, or sent on receipt of price by the BAX Will Form Company, 80 College street, Toronto.

CARE WHEN HEATING MILK.

A Simple and Inexpensive Appliance That Will Prove Helpful to the Busy Laundress on Wash Day is a Little Device With Two Wooden Rollers.

It is the little things in life that smoothe the pathway of the workaday world, that make the important tasks seem less strenuous, the hard day's work less fatiguing.

If housekeepers would observe more closely the small helps in their department of the great scheme of things they would be very much more apt to take pleasure in their work instead of moaning and complaining about the eternal round of dull monotony which is necessary in the care of a house and home.

Here are a few things that may aid in making the pathway of some woman easier. One of them is to rinse with cold water the utensil in which milk is boiled before putting the milk in it, and there will be no sticking or scorching in the bottom of the pan.

When heating milk, however, care should be taken not to place it over the hottest part of the stove. Set it at one side so it will heat slowly and

SAILING THE AIR.

How It Feels to Soar Aloft in a Balloon or Aeroplane.

ALL SENSE OF HEIGHT LOST.

Consequently There is No Feeling of Dizziness or Giddiness, and After Rising a Few Hundred Feet There is No Sensation of Speed.

Comparatively few persons can look down from a great height without a creepy sensation running through the nerves and chasing down the spine, and one would naturally think these unpleasant symptoms would be intensified if one were to rise several hundreds of feet in the air in a flying machine. But that idea is a mistake, according to Mr. Charles C. Turner in an article in the Pall Mall Magazine, in which he tells how beginners are taught the use of the aeroplane and describes the sensations of flight. He says:

"The manner in which a course of flight lessons begins depends chiefly on the weather. If it is fine and calm a pupil is at once taken out for passenger flights, sitting behind the teacher or beside him, according to the type of machine, and having nothing to think about except the novelty of his experiences and the new aspect in which he sees familiar things.

"His first flight is a great event in the career of the pupil, and when it is over he is anxious for the next. His estimate of the difficulties that lie before him is more modest, and he is ready to beseege his instructor with questions. He climbed into the passenger's seat and gripped the stanchions with both hands. He need not have gripped them quite so hard, for he soon found that the motion of the machine was not in the least disturbing.

"To start it a mechanic stood behind the main planes and gave the propeller a turn, and suddenly the engine was giving out a tremendous roar and making the machine vibrate. Other mechanics were holding on to the tail booms to prevent the aeroplane from shooting forward before the pilot was ready.

"But almost immediately the passenger observed the pilot hold up one hand as a signal, and on the instant the machine plunged forward over the ground like a swift motorcar. Before he had time to observe and note his feelings the sensations had changed. The machine was traveling forward with perfect smoothness, the noise of the engine had curiously softened down, the ground no longer raced beneath the machine, and he realized that he was flying and that already he was twenty, forty, fifty feet above the ground.

"Flying has been compared to many things, but in truth no comparison is good. Perhaps I may correct one or two common but false notions concerning it.

"There is no sense of traveling at a great height. There is not the slight-

SPAIN'S NATIONAL

"La Marcha Real" Was C Frederick the Great

Frederick the Great was a poser of the Spanish nation. Frederick's ambitions were performed on the flute. He was thought a poet. He quoted but his quotations would Cicero stare and gasp. I remarkable friendship between him and Voltaire of the "Henriade" exclaimed, "See the dirty lines wash," holding up Frederick's script, which had been sent to him. In the field he carried about his own pocket and a bottle of poison he should not be taken alive. picture depicts the king and Bach dedicated to him compositions.

The story of the composition of the Spanish national anthem is interesting. A little while after the signing of the Seven Years' war at a court reception to the every one produced a march had composed. The Spaniards, both a musician and asked for a copy to send to master, Charles III. The admired the piece and it heard at the Escorial. After was laid aside and almost in 1809, after the deposition of the Marshal Serrano Institution among composers for a national anthem. Some 500 compositions were sent in, but none of them inspiring as Frederick's march had been exhumed from the past. This was chosen and is to as "La Marcha Real."—Lo come to the boiling point gradually. If you are in a hurry, then put it over the hot part of the stove, but watch it constantly and stir frequently, or before you know it the milk will boil over and not only ruin the stove lids, but will make a very unpleasant odor all through the house.

It is best always to add a pinch of salt to boiled milk.

The busy housekeeper will be glad to learn a quick and easy way to make candles fit into her candlesticks. Should the ends of the candles be too thick for the stick simply dip them in boiling water for a minute. The heat will melt the wax so it can easily be pushed firmly into the candlestick.

For centuries women have bruised their knuckles on the ridges of the washboard, but this is no longer necessary. A convenient little device with two wooden rollers may be rubbed up and down over the clothes and washboard, and the knuckles will not be the least bit shiny, red or distorted after a day's washing.

Watercress a Tonic.

There is no green that is eaten with greater relish in the early spring, when the system craves such herbs as horseradish, watercress and dandelions. Not only is it useful as a tonic, but it makes a most appetizing garnish for meats and fish.

A wholesome dish is made with this green by boiling and serving like spinach with egg dressing. It is also tasty as a salad combined with diced cucumber and French dressing. A savory cream soup is made by chopping finely two bunches of watercress and cooking for five minutes in two tablespoonfuls of butter, then adding two cupfuls of white stock and boiling for five minutes. Thicken with one tablespoonful of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour cooked together, adding salt and pepper seasoning, and just before serving put in one-half cupful of milk and the yolk of one egg, slightly beaten. Serve with slices of French bread browned in the oven.

Cress may also be used with diced cucumbers and French dressing to stuff tomatoes. The tomatoes should be peeled and placed on a bed of crisp lettuce. Sandwiches of white or whole wheat bread with crusts removed and the greens mixed with French dressing and filled between thin buttered slices and rolled make a tasty luncheon dish.

"I will follow you to the ends of the earth," he exclaimed.

"But," she replied, "I am only going as far as the next soda water fountain."

good. Perhaps I may correct one or two common but false notions concerning it.

"There is no sense of traveling at a great height. There is not the slightest danger of giddiness. To me this gave no surprise, for, as every balloonist knows, it matters not whether he looks down from 20 or 2,000 feet—the sensation of height is absent.

"To take my own case, I cannot look down a 100 foot cliff for many seconds before feeling unsafe, but I can look down from a balloon that is two miles above ground and can gaze at the scene below for half an hour without a qualm. It is the experience of every aeronaut.

"It is impossible also with reasonable accuracy without the aid of an aneroid to estimate one's height. You see trees far below you, and if you are high enough they appear to be mere bushes, but you cannot tell whether you are 400 feet up or 700.

"Again, the sense of speed is almost entirely lost when you have attained a height of 300 or 400 feet. The ground passes below you very slowly, while if you get up to 800 or 1,000 feet it is only by steadily watching the ground that you perceive that you are moving. Yet all the while there is that steady gale of wind upon the face that informs you of your speed.

"In descending a pupil notices that the speed of the ground rapidly accelerates. The chances are that he cannot distinguish the moment when the landing wheels again come into contact with the earth. The machine moves forward over the ground until its momentum is exhausted, and he and the pilot then descend from their seats."

The Doctor's Sin of Omission.

Dorman in his "Primitive Superstitions" tells of an Indian who had been badly hurt by a grizzly bear. The medicine man prescribed a mixture of rattlesnakes' heads, wornout moccasins and chewing tobacco, seasoned with petroleum and red pepper, of which the patient was ordered to take a pint every half hour. "He was a brave man, but he died with the utmost expedition," and at the tribal inquest it was agreed that the remedy was faultless, but that death was due to the doctor's omitting to dance and yell.

Which Is Yours?

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Berry were guests last week of Mrs. Long, Centre- ville.

Sir Donald Mann was in town last week consulting with Messrs. Pierce.

The local lodge of the Canadian Order of Foresters intend attending divine service in a body on Sunday morning, June 23rd. It is expected a delegation from the Nananee lodge will come up to accompany their Deseronto brethren to church.

Forty-six years is a long time to serve the same company, yet Mr. Robert Brown has been in the service of the Rathbun Company since 1866, twenty-five years of which he had charge of a lumber camp. We regret to announce that we are to lose Mr. Brown as a citizen, as he left for Sud- bury Tuesday, where he will work with his son David. His other two sons are there also, drawing big salar- ies. Miss Ethel will remain in town until July 1st, when she will close up their home and visit her sisters and other friends for several weeks. She may eventually go to Sudbury. Miss Ethel will be very much missed in church circles in Deseronto, she always being ready to lend her help as far as her strength would permit.

A very representative meeting of baseball supporters was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, pre- sided over by Mr. James Gaulin, Mr. J. S. Lyons acting as secretary. The MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close High- er, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Bullish figured cepted prediction that had been current in Chicago. How far traders were from being prepared for such news might be judged from the fact that the market had been weak all day and had finish- ed at 3-8c to 1-2c net decline. Corn closed 3-8c to 1c down, and oats off 1-4c to 1-2c. The outcome in provisions was 7 1-2c to 22 1-2c increase in cost.

The Liverpool market closed to-day 1/4d to 1/2d higher than Saturday, on wheat and unchanged to 1/4d lower on corn. Ber- lin wheat closed 1/4c higher, Antwerp un- changed from last week.

ZAM-BUK AND OUTDOOR LIFE.

Every tennis or ball player, every swimmer, every canoeist, every man or woman who loves outdoor life and exercise should keep a box of Zam-Buk handy.

Zam-Buk is a purely herbal preparation, which, as soon as applied to cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, blisters, etc., sets up highly beneficial operations. First its antiseptic properties render the wound free from all danger from blood poisoning. Next, its soothing properties relieve and ease the pain. Then its rich, herbal balms penetrate the tissue, and set up the wonderful process of healing. Barbed wire scratches, insect stings, skin diseases, such as eczema, heat rashes, ring worm, babies' heat sores, chafed places, sore feet—are all quickly cured by Zam-Buk. It also eases and cures piles. All druggists and stores. Use Zam-Buk Soap also: 25c. per tablet.

Mr. Howard bought for Swift Co. 201 export steers; 150 for London, at $7.75 to $8, and 150 steers for Liverpool, at $7.65 to $8.00.

Butchers.

Best steers of export weight and quality for butchers' purposes, $7.75 to $8; good, $7.25 to $7.60; medium, $6.75 to $7.15; common, $6.25 to $6.60; in ferio, light cattle, $5.50 to $6; cows, $4 to $5.50; caanners, $2.50 to $3.

Stockers and Feeders

Feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth from $6 to $6.25; stockers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, are worth from $5 to $5.75.

Springers and Milkers

Milkers and springers sold at from $41 to $80 each, and there was one springer of superior quality for which $100 was refused. Notwithstanding this, the average prices were reported $5 to $10 per head lower.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves remained steady at $4 to $7.50 for the bulk, with a few choice veals at $8 to $8.50, and one new milk-fed calf at $9 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Prices for sheep took a 50c drop. Ewes sold at $4.50 to $5; rams, $3 to $4 per cwt. Spring lambs sold at $9 to $10 per cwt., and one old lamb brought $10.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston, buyer for Gunns (Limited), reported selects, fed and watered, at $3.50, and $3.15 f.o.b. cars.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 10.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending June 8 were 1800 cattle, 650 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs, and 1050 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 600 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 350 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was a little larger than this day week it did not seem to have any influence on the condition of the market. The feeling was stronger than ever and prices for steers scored another advance of 25c and bulls were 25c buyers was large and the demand from butchers was good, but packers were not operating to any extent. Some of them wired to Toronto for supplies, as they were under the impression that they could do better, there being a run of 140 cars on that market to-day. The bulk of the offering was cleared, notwithstanding the higher prices.

Owing to the steady increase in the supplies of hogs coming forward the tone of the market continues weak and prices scored a further decline of 10c per cwt, and 25c per cwt. more for the balance of the week. The demand from packers was good and an active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $9 to $9.15 per cwt. weighed off the cars, but for the balance of the week packers will only pay $8.75 to $9.

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for sheep and lambs, and prices have declined 25c to $1 per cwt., on account of the more liberal supplies offering. Lambs are also weaker and 50c per cwt. lower, but calves are steady under a good demand.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.25 to $8.50; medium, $8 to $7; common, $5.25 to $5.75; choice cows, $6.50 to $7; medium, $5.75 to $6; bulls, $6 to $7.75; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; common and medium, each, $35 to $75; springers, $50 to $60.

Sheep, ewes, $5.50; bucks and culls, $5; lambs, $6.75 to $7.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9 to $9.10. Calves, $3 to $10.

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—MR. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby became healthy every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Hennequin Tablets have the letter "H" stamped upon them—this is your guarantee. All dealers, 25c per package, or 5 for $1.00 sent postpaid to any address.

you will be able to observe the singular phenomenon of a fresh water tide, which ebbs and flows to a height of eighteen to thirty-six inches every two hours, and in passing down towards the mouth, you will see the buoys marking the channel pointing up stream, and the weeds clinging to them, stretching out upon the water in the same direction. Our river is crooked and choked with weeds, yet it is beautiful. The crooks we would not dispense with, and the weeds form an excellent test of one's equanimity, especially if he happens to run foul of them in a motor boat upon a dark night. As we steam down the narrow channel, the rushes on either side disappear beneath the surface with a graceful courtesy. Now and then a heron or crane startled by our approach crosses our bow, and the king fisher, poised in mid-air, watching for his prey in the waters below, utters his halcyon shriek, and rushes away to his mate perched on a neighboring bough. On we pass through fields of lily pads, stretching away to the waving cat-tails, which line the banks on either side. The fresh breeze greets us as we round the Big Bend, and soon the Bay of Quinte, down which Champlain passed with his Huron allies, three hundred years ago, lies before us. Let us cast our anchor at the mouth of the river, lower a boat and go ashore on the Fredericksburgh side, and perhaps we can solve a problem which up to this date has remained unanswered. There behind a fringe of trees, a hundred yards or more from shore, is the outline of an old foundation. With the aid of a pick and shovel we may be able to unearth a few more relics, such as were picked up at this spot last summer by a local antiquarian, fragments of Indian pottery, hand forged nails and bits of plaster, not unlike that found among the ruins of early French origin. Have we at last stumbled upon Ganneons, the first out post of the Kente mission, established by M. M. Trouve and Fenelon in the spring of 1689? No one can recall ever seeing a building upon that spot, or even the remnant of one, and the suggestion that this the real location, is worthy of your consideration, commanding as it does, a view of the three approaches to Mohawk Bay, as this expansion of the Bay of Quinte is called, and presenting an excellent landing place for the crafts of the Indians, it is a much more likely spot than any that could be found further up the river.

Across the Bay is the Town of Deseronto, so named after the notable Mohawk Chief, Day-say-ronth-you, (Thunder and lightning) a cousin of Captain Joseph Brant, and immediately beyond the Town is the Township to which was given his family name, Tyendinaga. Nestled among the trees on yonder hill, with its tower just peeping above their tops, is the Mohawk Church, in which the Chiefs will proudly exhibit to you a portion of the silver communion service, presented to their forefathers by Queen Anne. See yonder island just opposite decorated with a species of cosmopolitan architecture that defies classification. It is now known as Forester's Island, but in its pristine days when the wild ducks sought a shelter behind its marshy shores, it was plain "Captain John's Island," for it at one time formed a part of the demesne of Captain John, the English title of Day-say-ronth-you.

We will now get under way again and resume our trip down the reach, but here you will need no guide nor

Major Vanaistine beached his batteau with his faithful band of U. E. Loyalists, on the 16th day of June 1784. What a change has been wrought since that eventful day! On every side we now see evidences of prosperity and contentment in the well tilled farms, spacious barns and imposing residences, but most of all in the smiling faces of the residents who will greet us with a royal welcome, for the hospitality of the Adolphustonians is proverbial. In 1784, the stately forest, which until then had never resounded to the woodman's axe, stretched away from bay to bay, and in its welcome shade the tired pilgrims pitched their canvas tents, where you see that grey monolith erected to their memory. Thither we will direct our steps before descending the hill to the village beyond. Let us uncover as we bow our heads and contemplate in silence the following inscription:

In memory of the U. E. Loyalists who through loyalty to British Institutions,
Left the U.S., and landed on these shores on the 16th of June, 1786.

Here in the graves that cannot now be identified, for the wooden slabs then used as markers have long since rotted away, were buried many of Canada's worthiest sons.

Here also, crumbled into dust a century ago, lie the ashes of the first martyr on Canadian soil to that loyal cause. The joy of reaching their destination was marred by the death of a little child, worn out by the fatigue and exposure of the trying voyage. Here they digged their first grave and many a tear betrayed the emotion of the sunburnt spectators, as they lowered the wasted body into its tiny resting place.

As we reach the top of the hill, we will find much to engage our attention. Here stood the old Vandusen tavern, whose rough and ready proprietor, moved by the prohibition sentiment of the day chopped down his own sign post and cast in his lot with the first organization in Canada. Here lived Nicholas Hagerman, who for some time enjoyed the monopoly of being the first licensed legal practitioner in Upper Canada, and even with that enviable distinction did not scruple to hold his own with his neighbors in swinging the axe or wielding the cradle. Over the way stood at one time the old Court House in which Chief Justice Hagerman, son of Nicholas, received his early training. Going eastward down the street, we pass a more modern graveyard, yet the epitaphs recall names associated with many important events in the early history of our county. A few rods beyond is the memorial Anglican Church, the corner stone of which was laid by the Hon. John Beverly Robinson at the centennial celebration conducted with much ceremony and speech-making in 1884. This neat little building reflects great credit upon its former Rector the Rev. R. S. Forneri, to whom may be ascribed the honor of raising the necessary funds for its completion. Tastefully arranged around the walls of the interior are scores of modest but attractive tablets. I cannot refrain from mentioning a few of the inscriptions kindly furnished me by the Rev. Canon Roberts, the present Rector of the parish:

We cannot do more than cast a hurried glance over the long list of honored dead, which represents but a fraction of those brave loyalists, every man of whom, has earned a place in our Nation's Roll of Honor. They not only led the way in the ordinary and arduous struggles of the pioneer, but at the same time, worked out for themselves a system of self-government, the fundamental principles of which are preserved in our Municipal Act of to-day. No adventurers or outcasts were they, seeking to better their fortunes in a distant land, but strong men, whose loyalty was put to the severest test, men whose watchword was "God and our King."

Here we could linger for hours in these sacred precincts, in our vain endeavor to fully appreciate the true meaning of their voluntary exile. When we contemplate how these our forefathers abandoned home, with all that precious word signifies, how they endured the perils of a tedious voyage on the ocean, gulf and river, how axe in hand they advanced against the barriers of the forest and suffered the pangs of cold and hunger—when we contemplate that they freely underwent all these trials as their offering upon the altar of loyalty, can we find words to duly express their noble qualities of mind and heart? Have we paid that tribute to their memory that their deeds deserve? Are we not too prone to accept without question the priceless heritage they have left to us? It is only by awakening the enthusiasm of such men as gather at meetings of this character, that we can ever hope to do full justice to them. It is most fitting therefore, that the members of the Ontario Historical Society should hold, what I trust will prove one of its most successful conventions, in this historic old County, and as this is the point I set out to demonstrate, I leave it to you, while we return from this pleasant outing, whether or not in the brief time at my disposal, I have succeeded in proving that you chose well and wisely when you selected our little town for your meeting place.

Captain John, the English title of Day-say-ronth-you.

We will now get under way again
and resume our trip down the reach,
but here you will need no guide nor commentator, for neither the ravages of time nor the advent of the white men have marred the beauty of the scene. You will be quite content to enjoy in silence the panorama of the broken shore line, with its snug little coves, abrupt banks and shallow beaches, where you can hardly discern where land and water meet, all decked in every shade of green.

All to soon Hay Bay is reached.
Upon the farm at our left was born
our local historian, the late Thomas W. Casey, who imbued with love and loyalty to his native Country, did more than any other man to put in readable form our early records.

That barn like structure, a few miles
down the other shore is the first Methodist church, to which I have already referred. After being neglected for so many years, it is now back again under the care of that great body of christians which was cradled under its roof 120 years ago. As you observe, it was located near the shore, for in the early days, when good roads were scarce, the water route was the favourite thoroughfare. In the old burying ground near by, there lie side by side
the remains of nine young people (a tenth is buried elsewhere) who were capsized in 1819, a short distance from shore, as they were crossing the bay
in an open boat to attend a quarterly meeting in the old church.

Crossing the mouth of Hay Bay we enter upon sacred territory, for every farm has its history—a history of joys and sorrows, hopes and disappointments. Ahead of us is the famous Lake-on-the-Mountain, the shore of which is but a few yards distant from the steep precipice whose base is watered by the waters of the Bay 200 feet below. The water flowing from this lake formerly leaped over the cliff in a beautiful cascade and in time
wore away the limestone, thus hollow-ing out the glen, from which the hamlet "Glenora" derives its name. The scenic effect was sacrificed to the uses of the early settlers in 1796, when this outlet was conducted down the hill to
to turn the stones of the third grist mill built in this section.

But we must not tarry here too long,
although the temptation to do so is almost irresistible, for you will travel
many a mile before you will command
so entrancing a view as that to be had from the summit of the mountain.
Turning our prow Eastward, we steam down the Bay towards the old limestone City. In the distance is Amherst Island, at one time a part of the seig-nory of La Salle, and then called Isle
de Tonti, after his faithful lieutenant.
Across the Bay is the Village of Bath,
where stands the old St. John's Church, built in 1793, but still comparing favourably with most of our modern structures. A mile or two on this side of the Village is the site of the old Pinkle shipyard, where in 1815, were laid the timbers of the Frontenac, the first steamboat built in Upper Canada.
Just opposite that blue neck of water,
reaching in from Lake Ontario was erected in 1791, the first Anglican Church built in what was then the Province of Quebec. Here at St. Paul's Church and at St. John's at Bath, the Rev. John Langhorn, for many years ministered faithfully to the spiritual wants of his little flocks, and being the only clergyman in the Country authorized to solemnize marriages, his neatly kept registers have been of inestimable value in tracing the family history of his parishioners.

Having proceeded Eastward from Glenora, some three or four miles, we see to our left an inviting landing place, and so it appeared 128 years ago for that is the identical spot where

that it never terminated fatally has been exploded. Not only is this malady to be guarded against by every means possible, but it is even to be dreaded by those who are not over robust as leading to possible fatal results.

The old fashioned notion that a good dose of seasickness was beneficial was due wholly to the fact that upon recovery the victim of mal de mer is usually so delighted that he is apt to imagine that he never felt better in his life, while feeling normal again is merely so great a contrast to the exceedingly wretched condition which this disorder brings about that exaggeration of one's feelings is the most natural thing in the world. Sea-sickness is far from pleasant. It is not beneficial, and in rare cases it terminates fatally.

There is one consolation, however,
that with the growth of the size of ships and the increase of speed travelers are to a certain extent insured against it or if attacked are certain that their sufferings will be short.—

The Art of Poisoning.

Professional poisoners arose early in our era. It is recorded that Agrippina
(A. D. 26) refused to eat apples at the table of her father-in-law, Tiberius, through fear of poison. The notorious Locusta flourished in that epoch. It is charged that she supplied with appropriate directions the poison by which Agrippina rid herself of Claudius. She also furnished the poison that was administered to Britannicus by order of Nero. This crime was committed in quite a conventional manner. The Romans were accustomed to drink hot water at table, but the same temperature did not appeal to
all. A slave offered hot water to Britannicus. "Too hot," he remarked.
The slave added cold water. Britannicus drank, gasped once or twice and died. The cold water was poisoned either with a cyanide or with prussic acid.

Queer Newspaper Names.

The Italians are naturally an imaginative race, and the titles which they give to their newspapers, especially in the provinces, fully confirm the fact.
Here are some instances of the curiosities:

At Aquil, in Piedmont, there is Il
Bollente (the boiling one); at Gerace,
the Circus of Nero; at Messina, the Lightning; at Lucca, the Second Lightning; at Monbocelli, the Indeflexible; at Catania, the New Marionettes.

Humorous publications rejoice in even stranger titles. We have the Contropelo (shave against the grain)
at Naples, the Two of Spades at Turin, the Slap in the Face at Bologna, the Pif Paf at Palermo, the Brush at Cattanisetta and the Mosquito at Savigliano.

Dark Stars.

Scattered through space are innumerable stars that give forth very little light or heat. Either they were never at any period of their history bright and glowing like the myriad stars that make the midnight sky so beautiful or in the course of countless ages the heat they once possessed has radiated away from them into the depth of space, and now they are, as their name describes them, "dark stars."

SPROUTED CHICK FOOD.

Dates Have Some Advantages Over Other Forms of Green Fodder.

Sprouted grain appears to have some advantages over other forms of green food, says a bulletin of the New York State Agricultural college. This is particularly true in the feeding of young chickens during the season when they cannot have access to the ground and of mature stock during the breeding season.

In order to kill smut or mold spores it is recommended that the grain used for sprouting be treated with formalin. One pint of formalin added to thirty gallons of water will treat thirty bushels of oats. The liquid should be the clover flow that comes later on.

In setting the colonies outdoors jar them as little as possible. As soon as they are placed upon their summer stands give them some added protection in the form of building paper wrapped about the hives, as this will save a world of trouble.

A profitable industry is being developed on many of the government irrigation projects in the introduction of honey. The quality of this honey is superior. The flavor is exceptionally fine and the color clear and sparkling. Alfalfa is the chief source from which the bees secure their supply.

In all your operations with bees you must use gentleness. All quick, sudden jars and motions irritate them. Work slowly and carefully and you have nothing to fear. If they sting you and it swells your flesh your system will become accustomed to the poison and soon it will not annoy you any more than the prick of a pin, and it is an excellent preventive of rheumatism.

MISTRESS AND MAID.

Slovenliness of Domestic Often Results From Lack of Better Example.

When modern mistresses anathematize the shortcomings of modern maids do they realize their own ignorance of housewifery is in a great measure to blame for the existing state of things? A large proportion of the servants nowadays are inefficient, careless and devoted to pleasure and their own advancement, but surely the reason for this lies partly in the fact that they have never been taught to do their work properly. Therefore they never take an intelligent pride in doing it well. They are aware that the majority of mistresses share their ignorance as to the right and wrong ways of doing a thing. Consequently they perform their daily tasks in a slovenly, inefficient manner, with the pleasing conviction that they will never be found out.

Many girls leave homes where both order and method are unknown and start, say, as generals in situations where an incompetent mistress expects one pair of hands to do more than can possibly be well done.

It may be that the mistress' sole idea of housework consists in flicking about a duster in the drawing room—a performance erroneously termed dusting—and the untaught maid is left to manage the rest of the household affairs in the muddling, slovenly manner practiced in her own home. Such a girl will probably remain inefficient for the rest of her days, and if she marries her husband's house will be quite as uncomfortable as she made that of her mistress.

In a properly conducted household she is shown how to scrub a floor in the proper way; how to sweep a room without collecting all the dust into corners and leaving it there. She is made to take an interest in her work and very soon a pride in it as well.

She can be conscientiously recommended when the time comes for her to better herself, and if she is so disposed she can always obtain good situations and keep them. In larger establishments the untutored servants' education naturally depends upon the

FOUNDATION OF CROPS.

Lies in Seeds, So Keep Yours Clean and Well Graded.

Of all things that a farmer should do and of all things that he usually does not do until the day before seeding commences, if he does it at all, is the cleaning and grading of his seed grain, says the Iowa Homestead. Putting it off is easier than doing it, so a great many of us put it off, especially where we own no mill of our own. We do not realize that it would be a good investment for us to buy one and do not feel like asking a neighbor for the loan or use of his mill.

But cleaning and grading seed grain do pay. It would pay dollars for every hour spent at the actual labor of using the mill, besides $1 an hour for the use of the mill. This may seem like setting it pretty high, but think a little. Take into consideration the fact that a small, wrinkled, shriveled kernel of grain produces, if it produces anything, only a small, weakly, spindling plant. This plant may live through the season and produce its like or it may die early in life and be replaced by weeds or grass. In any case we should be having a strong, hearty, healthy plant growing where the sickly, spindling specimen grows, and the only way to be sure of it is to grade the seed we sow—to take out the small, shriveled kernels and sow only the plump, heavy ones.

Almost any one is ready to admit that we grow too many weeds now without deliberately sowing more seed of such pests with our small grain, but we actually and deliberately do sow weed seed that we would like mighty well to get rid of when we sow grain just as the thrasher cleaned it. A little cleaning with a good mill always surprises one by taking a lot of weed and bad grass seed out of what we think is very clean grain, while grain that we admit is too dirty to sow seems simply to dissolve itself into half weed seed and trash in going through a mill.

POINTERS FOR CORN GROWERS.

Do not fail to drain your soil. It will pay you for your toil.

If clover's sickly, put on lime. That will bring the soil to time.

Growing corn much water needs. Keep a soil mulch. Kill the weeds.

Heavy sods and good manure. Make the corn crop doubly sure.

This advice pray do not scorn: Use some phosphate on your corn. —Professor Alfred Vivian, Ohio Agricultural college.

For Perforating Sod.

When lawns are to be improved a sod perforator is a convenient implement to use. It consists of two twelve-inch squares of one inch board nailed together after the lower one has been filled full of rather large nails, as shown in the drawing. In the center a sprinkled over the grain and thoroughly mixed with it. The pile of wet grain should then be covered with blankets and allowed to remain for twelve hours. The blankets should be removed and the grain stirred twice a day until dry, requiring usually about two days. It should then be bagged in sacks which have been sprayed with a formalin mixture of the same strength as used in treating the oats. The trays should be sprayed thoroughly with the formalin mixture each time they are used.

For sprouting soak in warm water one ten-quart pailful of oats for twenty-four hours. Pour this grain on a tray. It will fill the tray level full. Sprinkle each trayful of grain with warm water each morning. The grain must be kept damp all the way through the mass if it is to sprout uniformly. In a room not artificially heated during the spring of the year in New York about seven to ten days are required to sprout the grain and grow the leaf about three inches high. By this time the sprouted grain will have formed a solid mat of roots, which can be removed from the tray and fed in the proportion of about one square inch per hen per day, or as much as will be eaten up clean.

There is illustrated a simple skeleton rack with trays used for sprouting oats. Four 2 by 4 inch sticks six feet long are used for corner posts, fastened together in pairs by horizontal cleats, with their top edges ten inches apart. The two inch by four inch pieces are two feet six inches apart by outside measurement. The two pairs of cleated stakes are fastened together exactly two feet six inches apart by inside measurement, with the cleats on the inside. A diagonal brace is nailed at the back of the frame. The cleats serve as slides and supports for the shelves. The shelves are exactly two feet six inches square and two inches deep. The bottom is made solid except for a few holes to allow for drainage.

The home garden saves the grocer's bills and furnishes wholesome, appetizing food for the farmer's family. The home garden should have a variety of the best vegetables that can be grown.

Apiary Notes.

There is no denying the fact that stimulative feeding in the spring increases the amount of brood reared and makes the colony rich in bees for uations and keep them. In larger establishments the untutored servants' education naturally depends upon the other servants, whose business it is to train her. But even here the mistress, provided she herself knows anything of household matters, can, if she wishes, do a great deal in the way of supervision and encouragement.

A Substitute For Meat.

Stuffed cabbage as it is served in a vegetarian family is substantial enough to make a substitute for meat. A loose head of cabbage is best for the purpose. Soak this in cold water for an hour or so and then put it into a pot of hot boiling water and let it stand on the back of the stove for twenty minutes. At the end of the time drain the cabbage and very carefully, without breaking off the leaves, press them back from the center and fill with the following mixture. A cupful of rice boiled tender, a cupful of chopped English walnuts, three hard boiled eggs chopped fine, salt, pepper and a little minced parsley. In filling the mixture into the head put it in by the spoonful, beginning with the very heart, folding the leaves back after every filling and spreading them thinly with it. Then tie the head securely in cheesecloth and boil it in salted water for about an hour. Serve with white sauce.

For the Horse's Sore Shoulders.

If the horse's shoulders should show signs of becoming sore, the skin being unbroken, a very good application is sulphate of zinc, one-half an ounce; sugar of lead, one-half an ounce, and water, one quart, and an excellent lotion for hardening the shoulders, even when they have not yet shown any disposition to become sore, is powdered alum, one ounce; sulphuric acid, one dram, and water, one quart.

Sheep In the Cornfields.

One great advantage in keeping sheep in a dry season when the pastures are dried up and closely eaten off is that we can turn the sheep into the cornfields as soon as the corn is well silked out, and this without injury to the corn. The sheep eat any grass and weeds among the corn and also the lower leaves on the cornstalks without detriment to the earing of the corn.

Lime.

A limestone soil is a good soil. This proverb states a rule to which the exceptions are so few, if there are any, that they need not be considered. Lime is more generally needed than most of us are aware. Try a few bushels of lime on the fields you are about to sow to clover and see if it makes a better crop.—Farm and Fire side.

Before planting any large quantity of small grain, grass or clover seed send a sample to your state experiment station for examination. The seeds of many noxious plants are to be found in impure and unreliable seeds. It is far easier to do this than to eradicate some pestiferous weed that obtains a firm foothold on your farm.

lawn just before seed or fertilizer is to be sown. Each blow makes a lot of small holes, into which the seed and the fertilizer are washed by the next rain, thus preventing loss.—American Agriculturist.

Has Your Horse the "Shivers?"

A horse with the "shivers" is a mighty uncomfortable creature and is always an easy victim to the influenza bug. Perhaps the stable is damp or drafty. More likely it is lacking in ventilation and no purifying rays of sunshine reach its interior. In such case the stock breathe over and over again the same air, their blood becomes starved for oxygen, and the circulation is impaired.

Larger Posts Are Best.

The Ohio experiment station in some tests to determine the durability of farm timbers found that large posts usually last longer than small ones of the same wood. It makes no difference, says a report received by the department of agriculture, which end of the post is put in the ground, except that preference should be given to the sounder or larger end.

Cultivating the Orchard.

A good method of cultivating an apple orchard is to plow very shallow as early in the spring as convenient and then keep harrowing at least once a week, according to weather conditions, until the first or even the middle of July. Then seed the land with crimson clover or some other good cover crop.

Calf Raising Wisdom.

A little milk at a time, but often, is calf raising wisdom reduced to the compass of a nutshell. Because a calf is naturally greedy it does not follow that its greed should be catered to.

The man who puts all his dependence on growing wheat or corn or cotton or any other indigenous crop and who sells that crop off to be shipped out of the country, and keeps that up, is simply taking his farm fertility out piecemeal and sending it by fast freight to the ends of the earth, never to come back again.

A Basket Pincushion.

A dainty use for discarded Easter egg baskets, such as children have in quantities, is to turn them into pincushions. Glue the baskets with gold paint. Two coats are usually sufficient. Stuff with wool and cover the top with colored satin, over which is stretched gold lace. Inside the edge of the basket, concealing the sewing of the cushion, add a wreath of any ribbon flowers in rich colorings.

These cushions are equally lovely if the baskets are silver and silver lace is used, over a color or white cushion top.

You were never too young— You will never be too old—to enjoy the Edison Phonograph

The Edison Phonograph is not only the greatest musician of all the ages—it is all the great musicians of the present day—playing all of the greatest music ever written.

You select your program to suit your audience when you own an Edison Phonograph. The songs you love best, sung by the singers who sing them best—your kind of music, rendered as only the Edison can render it—as true to life as the original.

The Edison tone is pure, smooth, subdued and true, because of the rounded, button-shaped sapphire reproducing-point, which gives exactly the right volume of sound for the home. And the sapphire point is permanent—lasts forever. No changing needles, no scratching or wearing of records.

There are Edison dealers everywhere. Go to the nearest and

BANK OF ENGLAND NOTES.

Always Fresh and Clean, as They Are Issued Only Once.

There is as great a difference between the systems of issuing and redeeming the notes of the Bank of England and of the banks of the United States as there is in the appearance of the notes themselves.

The English note is somewhat longer and much broader than ours, is of rough white paper, with ragged edges,
and is printed on one side only, with a few words and with no pictures or designs, while ours are completely covered on both sides with vignette and lathe work.

Our notes are issued again and again until they become so worn that they are no longer serviceable. A Bank of England note is never issued more

Moved by Mr. Longmore, seconded by Mr. Frink, that the following special grants be made for road expenditure: Newburgh $100, Bath $75, Denbigh, A. & A. $75, Kaladar, A. & E. $75, Amherst Island $75. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Hamby, seconded by Mr. Alexander, that North Fredericksburgh County Road account be allowed to be overdrawn $200, it being equivalent to the cost of the gravel put on County Roads by Statute Library. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Cook, seconded by Mr. Al- len, that Thomas V. Anderson be appointed County Road Superintendent for the balance of the year at a salary of $75 per month, he to lodge and board himself. Carried.

Our notes are issued again and again until they become so worn that they are no longer serviceable. A Bank of England note is never issued more than once. Every note that comes in is canceled at once, and then it is stored away with other canceled notes to be preserved for a certain period, when it is destroyed by burning.

It takes many clerks to keep the record of notes issued and paid, and so accurately is this work done that the date when any note was issued, the person receiving it, the time when it was paid into the bank and by whom, can be ascertained from the books. If the time was within five years the note itself can be produced.

Many are the stories of attempts to counterfeit these notes, which have al- ways been failures. As the average time between the issue and the pay- ment of the notes is only five or six days the fact that a counterfeit is in circulation is known almost at once, and the system of English bankers and merchants of keeping the numbers of the notes received and paid gives the clew whereby the offender is quickly apprehended.—Exchange.

Oh, dazzling chrysanthemum,
You are an autumn dream!
In pink and white and gold you come
Through nature's endless scheme.
And when I have to skip my lunch,
A noonday sacrifice,
It is to you I gladly turn,
Of posies fresh and nice.
It is to you I gladly turn,
So scintillating fair,
For roses cost more than I earn,
And violets are rare.
They'd put my income on the bum.
So you, oh, you, chrysanthemum!

words Rev. Dr. Gilray of the street Presbyterian Church, yesterday committed the Presbyterian Church in Canada to a test of organic union with the Methodist and Congregational churches, with which negotiations have been carried on for eight years. A statement adopted by the assembly does not formally and definitely bind the body to this course; but the denomination will never forgo the solemn ceremony of yesterday and can never, even if it is possible, escape its consequences. In it the chief leaders of the church and the chief opponents of union, with the assembled members entered into covenant to plan by actual experiment to show faithfully wherever they are led by the great head of the church. Everything that was said and done before and after the service and prayer, which consisted of a discussion of church union, and on the idea that the denomination had terminated the conference and had entered on a new era of new conditions and with new conditions.

of Rev. Dr. Scott of Montreal, of The Official Journal of the church, who through the entire assembly has been the strongest opponent of union, in moving that the decision of the assembly be forwarded at once to the churches interested, gave the touch to the proceedings. The decision remained to be said or done. The decision adopted was in part as follows:

It be an instruction to the mission committee to arrange for other negotiating churches further delimitation of territory in which they shall several new missions, as well as for application of the principle of co-operation already adopted.

It be an instruction to the mission committee to confer with the boards of the other churches with a view of co-operation possible way.

STRIKE IS CALLED

Transport Workers Endeavor to Tie Up All Britain.

300,000 ARE ORDERED OUT

The Employers in the Various British Ports Are Adherent in Their Attitude Towards Any Compromise and After Trying in Vain to Get Terms the Officials of Union Have Called a Strike.

London, June 11.—Three hundred thousand transport workers in this island will give up their jobs, and all foreign and coastwise shipping will be tied up indefinitely, if the union men obey the orders of the General Council of the Transport Workers Federation, which last night sent telegrams to every port in England, Scotland and Wales calling for a national strike.

The shipowners yesterday decided to reject a compromise, the terms of which the Government has been attempting to arrange. The principal points of the Government's proposals were a general organization of the employers to treat with the unions, and money guarantees by both sides as insurance against violations of agreements.

The employers maintain that their interests are so diverse that any organization would be impossible; they consider the Cabinet's proposals, particularly the financial feature, impracticable, and set their faces strongly against giving a labor monopoly to the unions.

When the Federation Council learned of the employers' decision it sent telegrams broadcast, signed by Robt. A. Williams, secretary, and Harry Gosling, chairman, reading: "The employers pointblank refuse to accept the proposals for a settlement. The national executive recommend a general stoppage at once."

The country has not been thrown into a panic by the calamity which threatens, because there is general hope that comparatively few of the men will respond to the leader's manifesto. Notes of disaffection are reported in several cities. At Newcastle, one of the most important ports, Peter Miller, the leader of the northeast coast unions, said there will be no strike. Manchester, on the other hand, appears to favor a strike.

If successful, the strike will be the most disastrous of the labor revolts which have kept the country in a turmoil for the past year, disturbed business and strained the diplomacy of the Liberal Government in keeping the good-will of its labor allies. The real question to-day being fought out is the recognition of union labor, and the cause of the trouble which has already cost business and wage-earners hundreds of thousands of pounds, is a stevedore named Thomas, who refused to join the union. The employers declined to discharge him, and the dockmen stopped work. They took advantage of the occasion to demand a general readjustment of terms from their employers, who, on their side, asserted that the men had already violated last year's agreement.

The transport federation comprises the following unions: Sailors and Firemen's Union, 90,000; Dock, Wharf and Riverside Workers, 75,000; Lon-

Showered by Volcano Ashes.

Vancouver, B.C., June 11.—Passengers on the steamer Camossun, which arrived yesterday morning from Prince Rupert, experienced a remarkable phenomenon all the way down until within 100 miles of Vancouver.

A steady shower of ashes, presumably from the recent volcanic eruption in Northern Alaska, started to fall into the sea and on to the vessel's deck soon after clearing from the northern port. The shower kept up steadily from Saturday morning until Sunday night at midnight.

The ashes fell to the depth of over an inch, and extra hands were set to work to sweep them away. The steamer still bears traces of her novel experience.

West Only Partially Pleased.

Winnipeg, June 11.—While there is some satisfaction expressed in the west over the temporary reduction of the cement duties, it is declared that the relief afforded will be unimportant, in so far as improving the stagnation now general in building circles.

Labor unions of every description are complaining, and contractors insist that a general paralysis of operations must follow unless cement is rushed in from every available source. The cut of one-half in the duty, it is said, will not enable shippers to send in American material, and thus force the hand of the Canadian Cement Co.

Ancient Stone Workers.

Egyptian stone workers 4,000 years ago had a surprising knowledge of what are considered modern tools. These pyramid builders operated with solid and tubular drills and straight and circular saws. In handling the tubular drills, which were of superior quality, the skill of the artisan was so remarkable that the cutting marks in granite show no indication of wear of the tool, while a cut of a tenth of an inch was made in the hardest rock at each revolution. A hole through both hard and soft material was bored perfectly smooth and uniform.

TORTURED FROM BABYHOOD

"Fruit-a-lives" Cures Constipation

Miss E. A. GOODALL

EDMONTON, ALTA., Nov. 20th, 1911

"I have been a sufferer since babyhood from that terrible complaint, Constipation. I have been treated by physicians, and have taken every medicine I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I finally concluded that there was no remedy in the world that could cure Constipation.

About this time, I heard about "Fruit-a-lives" and decided to try them. The effect was marvellous.

The first box gave me great relief, and after I had used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well.

"Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine that ever did me any good and I want to say to all who suffer as I did—"Try this fruit medicine and you will find—as I did—a perfect cure."

France Has Its Worries.

Havre, June 11.—The strike which was begun by the crew of the French liner France yesterday is spreading,
and 1,500 men are now out, the port being almost tied up. The steamship company has informed the passengers of the France that the Government has been requested to provide bluejackets to man the liner, but an answer is still awaited. In any case the France will not sail until to-night and the company has decided to refund the passage money to all who desire to leave the ship. The emigrants who were aboard the vessel have been placed temporarily in the company's hostelry.

The steamship St. Louis, which is expected to arrive here to-day, is to bring a certain number of sailors,
who will be transferred to the France.
The company's steamer Basse-Terre is also without a crew, and the departure of the Quebec for Hayti to-day
will have to be cancelled.

Jap-Russian Alliance?

London, June 11.—A Times' despatch from Tokio announces that ex-Premier Prince Katsura will leave early in July on a tour of Europe, returning by way of America.

The Jiji expresses the belief that Katsura's special endeavors will be directed toward clearing away the clouds obscuring the value of the Anglo-Japanese alliance in England. On the other hand, the equally influential Asahi frankly confesses that it is hopeless to think of installing again
into the alliance the life it had before the Russo-Japanese agreement, and declares that Katsura will find more to do in St. Petersburg.

Can't Scare Langlois.

Montreal, June 11.—G. Langlois,
M.P.P., who returned yesterday, gave out a statement to the effect that as Le Pays had published nothing against the church or any other religion he had nothing to take back. The member for St. Louis says that he will publish the archbishop's letter next Sunday, and will reply at length. He will not give up his fight for a better educational system in this province,
and believes that men of all denominations will stand by him.

To Test Explosives.

Ottawa, June 11.—Plans for a new explosive testing station, which the Dominion Government will erect
here, have been received by the mines department.

The Ship of State.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once took a fall
out of Sir Charles Tupper, for years leader of the Opposition, and Sir John Macdonald. Bantering them on their self praise for their own political services to Canada, he admitted that they had sailed the ship of state fairly successfully, adding: "Sir John was at the helm and supplied the brains,
while Sir Charles supplied the wind.
His blowing filled the sails."

ULCERS, BOILS, SWOLLEN GLANDS, BLOTCHES, PIMPLES, AND ALL SKIN AND BLOOD DISEASES ARE COMPLETELY CURED BY THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT

We desire to call the attention of all those afflicted with any Blood or Skin Disease to our New Method Treatment as a guaranteed cure for these complaints. There is no excuse for any person having a disfigured face from eruptions and blotches. No matter whether hereditary or acquired, our specific remedies and treatment neutralize all poisons in the blood and expel them from the system. Our vast experience in the treatment of thousands of the most serious and complicated cases enables us to perfect a cure without experimenting. We do business on the plan—Pay Only for the Benefit You Derive. If you have any blood disease, con-

AN AEROPLANE AT NAPANEE.

On July 1st visitors to Napanee, will see an unrivalled attraction. Who has not heard of the wonderful progress being made in aerial navigation and has not wished to see one of these wonderful crafts sailing through the air. This is no fake to draw a crowd, but the machine to be in Napanee on July 1st will be supplied by one of the foremost companies in the business, The Curtis Co. of New York. The company guarantees that the machine will make two flights of at least fifteen minutes each, during the afternoon, and will furnish an experienced aviator to make the flights. In Kingston the aviator offered a good sum of money to anyone who would make the flight with him, but no one took the offer. Two citizens of Napanee have already made application to be taken up in the air. Besides this splendid attraction good purses are being offered for horse races and baseball games. It will repay anyone to visit Napanee on July 1st.

The steam large, Waterlily, arrived in the harbor on Friday last with the first load of coal for the season. She brought in a load of chestnut and egg coal for F. E. VanLoven.

The members of the Napanee Cheese Board had a group photograph taken on Friday afternoon after the meeting of the Board. The picture was taken in front of the town hall by Mr. E. S. Richardson.

Robt. Reid, Camden East, was injured in a runaway accident at Kingston on Wednesday morning. With his son, Albert, he was going to Kingston and his horse ran away. Both occupants were thrown out Mr. Reid severely injuring his knees and back. The rig was demolished.

When painting houses and barns, there are a few important facts to keep in mind. One gallon of Sherwin-Williams specially prepared outside paint will cover 300 square feet, two coats. It will not chalk off like white lead. You use every drop in the can, there is no waste and no time lost in mixing. The Medical Hall—Fred L. Hooper, agent for Napanee.

The members of the Fire Brigade have about completed arrangements for their annual moonlight excursion down the bay. The date has been set for Friday evening, June 28th, and the popular steamer Brockville is the boat chosen for this outing. Invitations will be issued and thereby a select gathering is assured. Last year's moonlight by the fire company will be remembered as the finest ever run out of Napanee, and the one this year promises to be even better.

Hannah Elizabeth Vanalstine, beloved wife of Mr. W. H. Davis, of Picton, passed away on Monday last at her home in Picton. Mrs. Davis was a daughter of Mrs. Garrett Vanalstine, Palace Road, and had many friends in Napanee, who will be sorry to hear of her death. Besides her husband she leaves one son, her aged mother and three sisters, Miss Emmie Vanalstine, at home, Mrs. Jos. Lowry, in the west and Mrs. Arthur Boyes, Lachine, Que. The remains were brought to Napanee on Wednesday and place in Riverside cemetery vault.

Obituary

The funeral of the late Clarence Hayes, who died in the Hotel Dieu on Tuesday, May 7th, from injuries sustained by falling from a telephone pole, was held from the residence of his mother-in-law, Mrs. C. Ashley, 192 Colborne street, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was largely attended. Services were conducted by the Rev. T. W. Savory, pastor of the James' Church. Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves to mourn his loss a mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. S. Hayes, of Napanee, and one sister, Mrs. H. Eggleton, of Watertown, N. Y. The pallbearers were, Messrs. G. Smith, E. Robbs, J. Gorrie, W. Rogers, B. Simpson and T. Suava. Many beautiful floral tributes were sent: pillow, from his widow; cross, father and mother; anchor, sister; bell, from employees of Bell Telephone Co.; globe, from employees of Light, Heat and Power Department; sheaves, from Miss Annie Crelian, Miss Maud Derry, Mr. and Mrs. Lennon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Benis, Mr. and Mrs. G. Young, Mr. and Mrs. W. Pickering, Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith, Capt. and Mrs. Tullock, Mrs. Maxwell, and Mr. G. Hogan. The remains were placed in the Catarqui cemetery.—Taken from the Daily Standard, of Kingston, May 13th, 1912.

The Military Euchre.

The Napanee Ladies Hospital Aid Association again emphasized the fact that they are a valuable adjunct to the Kingston General Hospital when on Wednesday evening they gave a Military Euchre and dance in the lodge rooms of Napanee Lodge No. 88 and netted a goodly sum to be applied to the needs of the hospital. The rooms were tastefully decorated and arranged for the occasion and the card tables arranged to avoid any confusion. While the euchre was in progress in the lodge room the younger people were free to enjoy themselves in the adjoining dance hall and at the conclusion of euchre and lunch the card players joined the dancers and spent a pleasant couple of hours. The President of the Aid Association, Mrs. F. F. Miller, and the members of the association who planned the entertainment spent many hours working out the details of the affair so that all might run smoothly and that all who attended might enjoy themselves thoroughly, and it was the unanimous opinion that the ladies had admirably succeeded in their efforts. The winners of the trophies, which were four silk flags, were Mesdames McIntosh, Cameron Wilson, Norris Brisco and Mr. R. G. H. Travers, captain.

Red seal dry batteries wizard spark plugs are the best.

DRESDEN CHINA.

Its Three Periods and the Marks the Pieces Bear.

Dresden china began its reign at the fair of Leipzig, 1721, where it was offered for public sale for the first time. It has had three periods—King's, Marcoline and modern.

The factory marks traced on the bottom of each piece vary according to the period—the oldest (King's) being the monogram A. R. and the wand of Aesculapius. The familiar crossed swords, with the dot or circle between the handles, were first used in 1721, and the star took the place of the dot in the Marcoline period. The modern mark is the simple crossed swords, sometimes accompanied by letters and numbers.

Although the methods of work are still jealously guarded in all factories, the essentials are an open secret, and the following rough outline may satisfy the lazily curious: The ingredients of porcelain are kaolin feldspar, sand and selenite. These are ground fine and mixed in limewater. The paste is then molded into forms and fired in an oven of moderate heat. When taken out it is in an opaque state, and is then dipped in the glaze, which is feldspar ground fine, with a little alkali. It is now subjected to a firing of great heat, which results in the beautiful polished surface so familiar the world over.

This second firing is attended with risk, for if the piece is allowed to remain beyond the exact proper moment the whole melts together and is ruined.

A hero brave, a maiden fair,
 A villain schooled to graceful ease,
 A fight, a rescue planned with care—
 The novel's done. One dollar, please.

STORMS—At Napanee, on Monday, June 10th, 1912, Margaret Beatrice Storms, aged 29 years, 10 months, 13 days.

Rain.

This is good weather to make the weeds grow in the corn. You can keep them down if you use a Cock-shutt two horse corn cultivator. They are made in two styles with either spring or stiff teeth. Very easy to operate. Call in and look them over.

BACK TO BICYCLES

Owing to the fact that the Bicycle is coming back again to popular favor, we have increased our stock to double the quantity of last year's, and have reduced the prices on our Bicycles and Tires, and sundries. Our stock consists of the following well known makes:

Massey-Harris, Cleveland, Quick Step, The Falcon English Wheel and our own make, The Canadian.

All the above at less Prices than can be bought anywhere in Canada. We will sell a First-Class Bicycle, fitted with Dunlop Tires, Coaster Brake, and Mud Guard at $25.00.

Call and examine before buying, no need to send out of town for a Bicycle, as we will not be undersold by anyone.
